Ting, der NORMALT sker

almindelig nutid

Ting, der sker LIGE NU

ING-form

1. I often listen to my favourite music.      Right now I am listening to my favourite music.
2. He often writes an email.      Just now he is writing an email.
3. He always sleeps on the sofa.      Just now he _____ on the sofa.
4. She normally works till 3 o'clock,      but today she _____ late.
5. She often wears her red dress,      but today she _____ her blue dress.
6. Tom normally stands next to Jim,      but now he _____ next to Peter.
7. Sometimes we eat at a café,      but today we _____ at a restaurant.
8. She often wears a new hat.      Today she _____ a new coat.
9. It often rains a lot in Ireland.      Today it _____ a lot in Ireland.
10. Sometimes we go by car to town,      but now we _____ by train.
11. We usually drink coffee in the morning,      but this morning we _____ tea.
12. He usually goes to the concerts alone,      but tonight he _____ with a friend.

Nogle sætninger kan aldrig stå i ing-form, fordi de udtrykker noget, der altid gentager sig - en evig sandhed:

- The moon circles round the Earth
- Spring follows winter
- It costs a lot of money to travel to America

Verberne love and hate kan også vanskeligt stå i ing-form, fordi der er tale om nogle grundlæggende følelser, der ikke ændrer sig fra sekund til sekund:

I love warm summer days

I hate snakes

McDonald's tillader sig dog at bruge sloganet "I'm loving it!". Det er ikke sprogligt korrekt, men i reklamer bruges alle midler for at tiltrække sig opmærksomhed...
